MIDD. LOSES FIRST GAME

Amherst Defeats Middlebury in a Hard Fought Battle.

Middlebury was defeated in the opening game of the season when she went to Amherst, Mass., and played, upon Saturday, October 3d, the delegation from Amherst college. Altho the Middlebury men put up a hard fight the game is reported to have been rather loose, fumbles and poor tackling costing us the game. Capt. Jones was laid out at a rather critical time in the game and his loss was keenly felt. Lynch was replaced by Hard during the first quarter, the former having sustained injuries to his ankle. Parker, '16 replaced Chapman at right tackle for the last quarter, Parker '18 replacing Jones.

The first score was made in the last of the first quarter when a poor punt gave Amherst a big advantage and poor tackling let the ball over the line. A goal was also kicked from the field and in the last of the third quarter another touchdown was won by Amherst by pure bucking of the lines. The score was 17—0. It was Middlebury's first game of the season, whereas Amherst had already been on the field, and the loss of the game is nothing which should discourage the boys. The weak points have been found out and will be bolstered and there is no doubt about Middlebury making a good showing in the next game. The team brought to Amherst consisted of:—

Cowles, re.; Chapman and Parker, '16, rt'; Fish, rg:; Long, c,; Jones, and Parker, '18, le.; Condit, lt.; Kron, qb.; Lynch and Hare, hb.; Lamere, hb.; Keefe, fb.; Reynolds lg. Hubbard, Hawks and Brewster did not play. Parker, '18, le.; last quarter.

Freshman Reception.

The first social event of the college year was the freshman reception held in the gymnasium. It was well attended by both faculty and students and all are agreed that it was a great success. Each student was tagged with a card with his or her name on it, together with a ribbon to show to which class he or she belonged. The introduction committee saw that the freshmen were introduced, after which the ladies were seated, the men standing in the rear of the building. Day, president of the Union, introduced the speakers, the first being President Thomas. His speech was short, but of its usual good quality, but it showed that he does not know how the students appreciate hearing him speak. The next speaker was Professor Wright, whose subject was "Safety First." Miss Throop spoke on "Knowledge, Wisdom and Friendship." Jones, captain of football, in his speech first requested that some one make a motion to abolish the custom of having captains of teams make speeches, He then spoke of the prospects for football this season. Between the speeches Miss Duffield, Mr. Miller and Mr. Ottman rendered vocal solos. Our good orchestra did its part as usual. After the entertainment light refreshments were served.

STARTS 115th YEAR.

President Thomas Gives Opening Address to the Students of Middlebury.

Freshman Class Slightly Smaller than Last Year, but of Excellent Quality. New Entrance Requirements Raises Standard of Entering Class.

PRESIDENT JOHN M. THOMAS.

President John M. Thomas officially opened the 115th college year when he delivered his address of welcome to the student body and friends in the Congregational auditorium Thursday morning, September 24th. After brief devotional exercises, Dr. Thomas opened his address, his subject being "Substitutes for the Military Incentive." After describing the great war now in progress in Europe and lauding the people of those countries for the spirit of self sacrifice which they are manifesting for their countries, Dr. Thomas turned his subject to battles which should be fought in time of peace. In part he spoke as follows:—

"But in the ways of lowly quiet there is no flag, no bugle, no stiring drum, there are no clear explicit orders, moment by moment. Often there is no necessity of accounting for one's work, month after month, perhaps year after year. In the dull workshops of peace a man must often plod along almost alone, scarcely able to discern whether he is accomplishing anything or not.

"But we were told long ago that 'he that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city.' To subdue the brute within us, to develop a manhood pure in heart, keen in mind, and strong in soul is more than to stand behind great guns. To do a constructive work for one's country is as noble as to defend the flag. The men who make the country worth saving, for the beauty of its common life and the nobility of its ideals, stand in equal honor with those who rally to its colors in its hour of need. It is indeed more difficult to find one's work of service for the world, something large and hard, and to get ready for it by earnest, trying labor through many patient years, than it is to serve one's country when a recruiting office is in every city and the soldiers march in every street. Just because it is harder, it is also more noble, and it builds the larger man. For the soldier after all is a barbarian, and he practices primitive virtues. Men wielded the war club milleniums of years before they founded hospitals and schools, before they learned by pen and brush to paint the glories of the mountains and the sea, before they searched the deeps of the human spirit and learned the likeness of man and God. It is the later arts of humanity, the arts of the mind and the inspired soul, which call for the utmost mettle and do most glorify the artist. The world we tread has known the footsteps of Plato and Homer, of St. Francis of Assisi and St. Theresa of Spain, and it calls for a manhood infinitely superior to that of the mere fighter. The Galilean lived 2000 years ago, and what is the blind courage of the soldier to His touch of little children and the example of His cross.

"Some day, in some quiet laboratory, some patient student will discover a serum that will work its way to the infinitesimal organisms which no microscope has yet discerned, but which are beleived to be the cause of infantile paralysis. In the laboratories of research which have been so generously established in recent years there is room for a thousand workers who can spend a glorious life in ferreting out the causes of human misery and discovering means of relief. Thousands more will carry the bendiction to every community in the world, and by thorough knowledge and trained hand will minister health to their fellows and win the rewards of high service for themselves. Others will organize industries and change whole countrysides from half tilled wastes to scenes of prosperity and happiness. Others will enlist in civic and judicial reform and in social service, and by clear thinking and resolute doing will purge the earth of a myriad of deep-seated corruptions and abuses, and thus hasten the day of equal justice and opportunity for all. The world is full of opportunitiy, full of need, and the only question is, not whether one may find a chance and a call, but whether he have mind enough and mettle enough to do the work which beckons for his hand.

"There are two things which stir my wonder and surprise with relation to the life and work of the human race: first, how much has been accomplished since humanity emerged from savagery, in civilization and art, in literature and science, in government and industry We have come a long way, and we have erected many noble monuments along the road.

SOPHS. AFTER FRESHIES

Usual Rules and Regulations to Govern New Students.

The freshmen rules, which have been as usual diligently prepared by the ever watchful sophomores and printed upon large green posters, have been conspicuously displayed around college. The rules for the men of the class are as follows:

1918

WATCH YOUR STEP! SAFETY FIRST. You unsophisticated, green-eyed, web-footed infants!

I. Wear the regulation cap or class toque, first appearing at chapel and on every other occasion while in town during the first semester, Sundays excepted. Cap should be olive green with pink button one and one half inches in diameter.

II. Wear plain black ties with socks of like color for the first three weeks.

III. Do not wear corduroy or khaki pants.

IV. Leave at home preparatory letters or numerals.

V. Run to all college recitations, or when ever on the campus, during the first week of the college year. Enter chapel through the lower door.

VI. Must not smoke on campus or street but must be able to furnish matches to upper classmen at all times.

VII. Walks are made for you to walk on. Use them.

VIII. Salute the faculty and upper classmen, fin out when so directed, and give upper classmen preference at all places of assemblage.

IX. Assist all managers and assistant managers and meet all athletic teams.

X. Do not appear at athletic contests with co-eds but sit in a body in cheering section during the first semester.

Love, fear and obey us. Your superiors. 1917.

Rules for Freshmen Women.

I. Use lower door of chapel throughout the whole year.

II. Freshmen must keep on the paths of the campus unless accompanied by an upper classman.

III. Freshmen must never be seen loitering on the campus walks.

IV. Eating on the streets is strictly forbidden.

V. Slang is strictly forbidden.

VI. Wear green badge at all places excepting church and unless told not to by authority.

VII. Do not attend movies more than once a week unless permission has been obtained from some Sophomore.

VIII. Learn by heart—
"March, march on down the Field,"
"On this far famed field of Battle,"
"All hail to Thee."
And the new song.

IX. Co-eding should never be carried to extremes.

X. All school emblems on sweaters must be discarded.

XI. Loud sashes must not be worn.

XII. Freshmen must courtesy and give name on meeting Sophomores.

New Members of the Faculty.

Of the new members of the faculty Prof. Llewelyn R. Perkins has taken several of the courses in engineering which had been taught by Professor Barnes, who has been made head of a department in an engineering college in New Mexico. Professor Perkins has also taken Professor Paine's place in the mathematical department. Professor Paine left to take a position in the West. Professor Perkins is a graduate of Tufts and a native of Vermont and Mrs. Perkins is the daughter of Rowland E. Robinson, the Vermont author.

In the department of home economics Miss Wells has been succeeded by Miss Marion Spaulding, a graduate of Framingham Normal school and of Teachers' College, Columbia University.

Professor Skillings has been prevented from serving as Prussian Exchange teacher this year and is conducting his classes as usual. The requirement in modern languages has been made two B courses in either French or German instead of two B courses in both. This change will enable students to take larger advantages of the group system.

Frequent rains during the summer have favored the campus and Porter field, and the college grounds never looked more attractive. All in all Middlebury may be expected to give a good account of herself in 1914-15.

Brown Celebrates 150th Year.

Brown University will celebrate her 150th anniversary from October 11th to 15th. Representatives from the various colleges will be there to extend congratulations to Brown. James M. Gifford '77 will act as official delegate from Middlebury. President John M. Thomas of Middlebury will give an address upon "Religious Education" on the afternoon of October 12th.

"JOAKS"

Religious freshman—"Good Lord Christian, what is your creed."

We almost had a freshman this year named Broma. And he might have roomed with Sultzer '17.

Of course we know they are very young and very tender, but one freshman claimed at the Registrars office that he was born in 1913.

Prof. H.—What would you do Mr. Clark if you were to deliver a lecture on a subject concerning which your audience knew little.
C.—Well, appearance counts a lot, I'd try to look as if I knew something.
Be reasonable, Clark, be reasonable.

Miss Anna Maud C—. '18 desires to correct certain rumors concerning why she left her happy home at Gorham, Maine to enter Middlebury college. She says that regardless of rumors to the contrary that:—

It wasn't the cough
That carried her off
But 'twas the coffin
They carried her off in.

Solved at last—Why do the leaves change color in September?
They don't wish to be mistaken for freshman.

Freshman (noticing that Joe Calvi speaks to upper classmen), "He looks like a foreigner, what is he professor of?"

Wanted—Large size perambulator for carrying of student teachers' books!

Dressmaking by the hour or day. Finished while you wait. Apply 43 Pearsons.

New Dogs, Old Tricks.

THE CAMPUS has been requested to call the attention of the freshmen to a little point of class-room etiquette. It is not customary in the college class-room to raise the hand, snap fingers, etc., to call the attention of the instructor. That privilege should have been left with your successors in preps. All will have plenty of time to show their knowledge before leaving college, so in the meantime let us give the fellow who is called upon a chance to recite. Even upper class men occasionally stumble on the right answer if given time enough and it has been generally observed that the student who really knows a thing or two is too much of a lady or gentleman to flaunt this knowledge to the discredit of a classmate.

Correction in Handbook.

THE CAMPUS has been requested to call attention to an error in this year's Handbook for freshmen. The Kappa Delta Rho Fraternity is not a local, as was stated in the Handbook, but a national fraternity.

Hayes-Dutton.

Miss Ruth Dutton, ex-'15, who for the past year has been teaching in New Orleans, and Carl Hayes of New York were married Saturday, the 26th of September, at Randolph, Vt. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will reside at New York, where Mr. Hayes is in business.

STARTS 115th YEAR.

"Yet I have equal wonder that so much remains to do. We are yet only half men, we know so little, and we practice so much less, of the things which might make life glad and good. Vices which were exposed in all their hideousness centuries ago still claim their victims by the myriad. Knowledge that has glowed on the pages of philosophers and scientists for a thousand years is still unapplied. We have only half made earnest with democracy and our clumsy institutions and foolish economic practices still deny to a large proportion of the race the right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. No nation, and scarcely an individual, has yet dared the experiment of becoming thoroughly and earnestly Christian, The world is full to running over with problems, and every problem is an opportunity for many men.

A human life is just the chance during a brief period of time to find some place as a worker and fighter for the better days to be. It is not worth the living on any other terms. Unless a man can find some work in which he glories as his own, unless he can enlist under some flag that stands for larger freedom of life, he will find no reward for his labor. I confess I have had moments when I have envied the young men called to the colors in the great European war. That were an easy and a glorious solution of the problem of life—to rally to the standard and to hold the line against all odds. But that is not permitted us. We are called to something harder and higher, in this place of lowly quiet to acquit ourselves like men and to fit ourselves to render the unobtrusive service which in God's good time shall help to build a fairer world, I challenge you in this college to show in the duty appointed to you here the same spirit of fight which you would exhibit if your country were in peril and if your flag were in the trenches. I ask you to make yourselves brothers of the 1000 men of Oxford, in the verve and intensity you put in your work, whether in classroom or on athletic field or in any other sphere of our life together as a college. A man can die better than 'facing fearful odds, for the ashes of his fathers and the temples of his gods'. Not if that is his call! But if the good God permits him to live for his country, not to die for it but to live for his country, not for himself, he may die yet more gloriously, a hero in character and in noble service for the good of his fellowmen."

Hat Scrap.

The annual Hat Scrap was won this year by the sophomores, who had 7 hands on the hat to the freshmen 4.

Rushing Rules in the Women's College.

Three years ago a Pan-Hellenic association was formed in this college to regulate rules for rushing, date of pledge day, and all matters of this sort.

It was agreed to have two delegates from each sorority, to form a council for all discussion of the above mentioned matters. The principal rules are as follows:

There shall be no talk between sorority girls and freshmen girls concerning sorority matters.

No sorority girl shall entertain or be entertained by a freshman unless another sorority is represented.

No sorority girl shall accept an invitation from a non-sorority girl to any gathering where freshmen are to be present unless another sorority is represented.

These rules have been tried and found to work well. The only point in question, which often is not clear is the meaning of "entertainment". Entertaining shall include any form of recreation or social affairs for which definite plans are made beforehand. That is, sorority girls and freshmen may not go walking, or have "feeds", or even study together unless another sorority is represented. This seems hard, but it is the only fair way, and as long as each girl is honorable in her relations, and true to the dictates of her own conscience, there should be few offenders.

Violation of these rules, though infrequent, are none the less reprehensible. It seems unfortunate if college girls cannot do the square thing, even if they do belong to sororities. As for the freshmen, the best advice one can give them is to be friends with everyone, but make their best friends in their own class.

Hanks & Chilson Donate Hats.

The firm of Hanks & Chilson has again come to the front and donated as they did last year, the required cap to the men of the freshmen class. Previous to last year the freshmen were obliged to pay as high as seventy-five cents for this particular piece of apparel, and as every freshman was obliged to wear one there was no dickering over the price, either.

We believe that Hanks & Chilson will not have occasion to regret their act, however, but on the contrary will have their investment returned many fold in trade, through the good will of the college which they are rapidly acquiring by the manifestation of just such a spirit as they have shown upon this occasion.

New Head of Home Economics Department.

Middlebury College is to be counted especially lucky in having added to its faculty Miss Marion Spaulding of Hingmam, Mass. Miss Spaulding, who takes Miss Wells' place as head of the department of home economics is a graduate of Framingham Normal and received her degree from Columbia University. It is always pleasant to welcome newcomers to the faculty, but it is seldom that we find one so accomplished in so many ways. We wish you a happy year, Miss Spaulding.

Miss Effie P. Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wells of Burlington, and Wm. M. Duffus of Madison, Wis., were married at the home of the bride's parents on College street on Thursday last.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Vermont, at which institution she also received her degree of Master of Arts. For the past two years she has been head of the Home Economics department of Middlebury College.

Corn Roast.

A corn roast was given to the girls on the hill by Mr. Clyde Hurlburt on Friday evening, October 2. The pleasant occasion was enjoyed by all and many thanks are extended to Mr. Hurlburt.

The Junior-Freshman Bacon Bat.

By way of softening the sophomore sternness the women of the junior class entertained the women of their sister class by a Bacon Bat on Saturday afternoon, October 3.

MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE

ESTABLISHED IN 1800

"A good college in a small town. * * * The value of the buildings, grounds, and apparatus approximates $470,000, having been practically doubled in the last six years under the energetic administration of the President now in office. * * The twenty eight members of the staff are men of excellent training in good institutions. * * * The work of the College is distinctly good. * * * Institutions of this type are of the greatest value. They have brought into our American life many of our best men and women."

ALUMNI NOTES.

'08. Miss Grace Buttolph, who sailed for Germany last summer to study there a year, was obliged to return home soon after the war broke out. Her party was in Berlin when war was declared and she describes vividly the enthusiasm of the German people at that time. However, she was very glad to reach the quiet little town of Middlebury again, after the great excitement of the last few weeks.

'14. Helen Haugh and Vera Suter are both teaching, Miss Haugh in the High school at Middletown, Conn., and Miss Suter in the Bennington High school. In common with most of their class they would seem to be pretty home-sick for Middlebury at times.

Prof. Arthur Wallace Peach, author and professor of English Literature at Norwich University and a graduate of Middlebury, gave a most instructive and interesting address on "O Henry Interpreter", at Northfield, September 10th. It was learned that "O Henry" was merely the pen name of William Sidney Porter, whose short, busy life was filled with the study of the common people. He did not write of dwellers in palaces but rather of the people whom he met every day with keen understanding of their pleasures and sorrows. Professor Peach gave a sympathetic picture of this talented writer whose life closed before he was well understood, but whose work is so realistic that he will have a permanent place and high rank among American writers.

Harwood-Wiley.

Assistant Dean Edgar J. Wiley and Miss E. Pruda Harwood were married at the home of Miss Harwood at Round Lake, N. Y., on September 4, 1914, by Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the college.

Mrs. Wiley is the daughter of Mrs, T. C. Harwood of Round Lake, a member of the Alpha Chi fraternity and a graduate of Middlebury in the class of 1912, Mr. Wiley graduated in 1913, at which time he took up his duties in his present capacity as assistant dean. He is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi. Mr. and Mrs. Wiley have the congratulations of their many town and college friends. They will be at home after October 1 at 363 Main street, Middlebury.

The New Vermont.

Lyman A. Morhous, county secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and a graduate of Middlebury in 1910, gave a most interesting and instructive lecture at the college on the evening of October 6th before a large audience. Mr. Morhous's subject was "The New Vermont", and his lecture was prepared for the most part from first-hand material which was gathered while carrying out his duties in connection with the Y. M. C. A. The audience was an appreciative one and were well rewarded for their attendance at the lecture.

Y. W. C. A. Reception.

On Wednesday evening, September 23, the annual reception of welcome to incoming students of the woman's college was held at Pearsons Hall. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Fisk and Miss Buxton and a vocal solo by Miss Duffield. Welcoming speeches were made by Miss Throop and Miss Buck. Ice cream and wafers were served.
